Town of North Hempstead Host E-Waste Drop-off at Manhasset High School

Manhasset, NY—Supervisor Jon Kaiman and Councilwoman Maria-Christina Poons greeted residents recently at Manhasset High School, one in a series of designated e-waste disposal sites, as part of North Hempstead’s School Recycling Partnership Program.

“It’s very encouraging to see the community work together with The Town of North Hempstead and our local schools to provide and take advantage of the opportunity to protect the environment by keeping electronic waste out of landfills,” Supervisor Kaiman said. “I thank both Superintendent Charles Cardillo and Principal Dean Schlanger for their support of the program.”

John Raggio of Munsey Park took time out of his busy schedule to drop off old cell phones, a computer keyboard and a worn-out karaoke machine.

“I strongly believe in doing my part to green the environment rather than dumping these items in the regular garbage where they possibly will end up in the landfill,” Raggio said. “It’s the way to go.”

Supervisor Kaiman encourages residents to sign-up for e-news at www.northhempsteadny.gov to receive reminders on electronic waste disposals, STOP Programs, Pharmaceutical Drop-Offs and other environmental programs.
