

Butterfly weed (Asclepias tuberosa): This short species of milkweed has beautiful orange blooms and bright green foliage. Milkweeds are vital to monarch butterflies, which are in decline, since their larvae only feed on these plants that have been decimated due to habitat loss, development, and pesticide use. Blooms May through September.

