

Switchgrass (Panicum virgatum): This native warm season, clump forming grass has a stiff, columnar form. Its green leaves turn yellow in the fall. Its seeds provide a good food source for birds in winter. It also provides cover and nesting material for birds and mammals. It is a larval host for skipper butterfly species.

