

Inkberry (Ilex glabra): This plant is a great native alternative to boxwood with small white flowers and a dark purple, almost black fruit, which supports local birds and other wildlife. These plants are dioecious (separate male and female plants) so males must be planted with females to get any fruit. Blooms June to August.

