

Serviceberry (Amelanchier canadensis): This tree is multi-trunked with white flowers that give way to summer berries that are edible for humans and wildlife. Green summer leaves turn orange or red in the fall. The fruit is popular with birds and mammals and the flowers also provide nectar and pollen for pollinators. It is of special value to native bees. Blooms in April.

